

➡ Familiarity with relevant vulnerability classes

➡ Modularity - separate modules for separate functionalities

➡ Sanitize, validate, restrict input data even between modules or components (mutual suspicion)

➔ Be 'fault tolerant' by having a consistent policy to handle failure

→ Use reputable, security conscious and well maintained libraries

Adopt good programming practices, be security aware

Secure Programming

Secure Programming

- ➡ Familiarity with relevant vulnerability classes
- ➡ Modularity - separate modules for separate functionalities
- ➡ Sanitize, validate, restrict input data even between modules or components (mutual suspicion)
- ➡ Be “fault tolerant” by having a consistent policy to handle failure
- ➡ Use reputable, security conscious and well maintained libraries
- ➡ Adopt good programming practices, be security aware

Software Security Assessment